PDQ began using a Ready-to-Implement Corvitus solution to identify high-performing candidates. After seeing great success, they wanted a solution customized to their culture and expectations for customer service. To develop a more precise solution, PDQ participated in a validation study where participants completed a variety of assessments and their supervisors completed evaluations of their performance tailored to PDQ's definition of success. This allowed Corvitus to "test the tests" and build an assessment that best predicts all key areas of performance.

Managers who pass Corvitus assessments are:

PDQ's Assessment

PDQ's assessment measures a candidate's mental horsepower to learn quickly and solve problems (cognitive ability) as well as how the candidate's personality aligns with PDQ's unique values, brand, and expectations. Operator-friendly reports allow leaders to confidently and quickly make decisions, saving time and money.
